Summary of Conclusions and Recommendations

Visitors value the Morecambe Bay area for its scenic beauty, the opportunities for quiet enjoyment of the landscape, its nature and wildlife, and its cultural and historic interest. These qualities strongly underpin its attraction as a visitor destination.

There is a loyal market with a strong interest in outdoor activities.

Visitors to Morecambe Bay add value to the local economy. The largest area of spend, excluding accommodation, is on food and drink with a significant proportion of visitors eating and drinking out whilst visiting the area.

All types of visitors support the local economy whilst here. Visitors who stay the longest and spend the most are interested in activities linked to both the natural and cultural/historic interest of the area. Nature providers should connect with businesses, historic/cultural providers and tourism bodies to promote the nature interest alongside these.

Promoting the area's nature attractions and nature rich areas along with the range of other things to do, places to explore and enjoy, eat and stay will help visitors plan for longer breaks and stays in the area and increase the value of the visitor economy.

Visitors need inspiration and information on what's great about the Morecambe Bay area to help them choose to visit the area, and to plan their visit both before and during their stay.

A bay wide Sense of Place Programme and support network for businesses interested in marketing the nature of the bay could help promote the area as a wildlife rich destination.

The Bay area as a nature destination should be promoted to the loyal independent and active over 55's group as well as potential growth markets which include families, younger active couples and groups and national and international visitors.

Special interest groups could be a growth area if the area is to be marketed as a leading English wildlife destination.

The Bay area is well placed to encourage low carbon tourism with its network of rail stations, bus hubs and walking and cycling routes.

“ We enjoy watching the channel, the sea breeze and the space to clear our minds. ”
Survey respondent, Oct 2012

The survey was undertaken in Autumn 2012 to support the development of a Nature Tourism Business Network as part of the Morecambe Bay Limestones and Wetlands Nature Improvement Area (NIA), and the RSPB Morecambe Bay Futurescape. The survey was carried out on behalf of the Morecambe Bay Wildlife Network (which is now part of the Morecambe Bay Local Nature Partnership).

The survey was carried out in 16 locations around Morecambe Bay. These represented rural, village/town, coastal and inland locations. Several key attractions were also included. In total, 361 face to face interviews were carried out and 47 online surveys were completed.

The survey work, analysis and report were managed by the RSPB with guidance from the NIA Nature Tourism Steering Group. This comprises representatives from Arnside and Silverdale Area of Outstanding Natural Beauty, Bay Tourism and the RSPB.
