Welcome

Fen Drayton Lakes is a wetland site that began life as a flooded sand and gravel quarry next to riverside meadows in the floodplain of the river Great Ouse in Cambridgeshire. The site offers flat walks of varying length alongside lake shores, riverbanks, grasslands, hedgerows and plantation woodlands. A huge variety of wildlife is drawn to the area, including otters, dragonflies, ducks, swans and geese. There's something to see (and hear) all year round.
